FOUNDATION OF BRAND RECOGNITION

ABOUT US

Since launching in 2009, the BCO NextGen has grown into a community of more than 1,200 professionals aged 35 and under, representing a third of the BCO's wider membership.

What began as a way to bring new voices into the industry is now a well-established platform for emerging leaders.

NextGen connects ambitious professionals across the commercial property sector through events, mentoring and collaboration. Members explore the future of workplaces - from sustainability and smart buildings to flexibility and digital innovation - while building strong peer networks and learning directly from industry leaders.

Through building tours, panel discussions and seminars, and the BCO's wider programme of more than 100 events annually, NextGen is where fresh perspectives help shape the future of the workplace.

A group of six diverse young professionals (three women and three men) are standing in a row, smiling, in front of a display for the BCO Ideas Competition. The display features the BCO logo and the text 'The next generation of leaders'. The individuals are wearing lanyards with BCO badges. The background is a light-colored wall with a large window.

NEXT GEN IDEAS COMPETITION 2026

The BCO Ideas Competition challenges the next generation of leaders to step forward with bold, original and actionable ideas for the future of workspace.

This year we're going even further, turning the event into flagship national programme for the BCO, showcasing talent from across the UK. We're inviting NextGen members to tackle the biggest questions facing our industry – and come up with some answers.

The project provides a high-profile platform for emerging talent to showcase their thinking, creativity and leadership not only to the BCO community but the wider workplace sector.

More than a competition, the BCO Ideas competition is a structured development journey. Participants are supported to turn early-stage ideas into powerful, compelling propositions through award-winning ideas-formation and public speaking training delivered by Ginger Leadership Communications, alongside mentoring from across the BCO community.

SUBMISSIONS

The submissions for the project have surpassed expectations in quality, underscoring the immense effort and significance attached to this pivotal event.
